The State Has Grown Immensely Richer in Past Few Years.

REVENUE LARGE YIELDS

Estimated That Seventy Millions Will Accrue to Commonwealth.

One of the oldest and most experienced of the State's fiscal officers expressed the opinion yesterday that, judging from the returns already in, the increase in values of real estate in the one hundred counties and eighteen cities of the Commonwealth will aggregate at twenty million dollars. This, he stated, was a very conservative estimate. Based on the report of the assessors from one of the smallest and least opulent countles of the State, the increase indicated was from twelve to lifteeh millions. Chesterfield county was erroneously reported at about $89,000 increase, but it was subsequently learned that these figures were from only one magisterial district. The total for the county will be much larger. It is expected that almost all the counties will have been reported as well as the cities by August 1st. The increase from the cities and from those counties in which the larger cities are situated will be enormous, and that from the larger and more presperous counties will also be great. With these facts considered, it is easy to see that the tocrease in taxable values will exceed twenty million and may reach tyenty-five million.

Seventy Thousands. the smallest and least opulent coun-Seventy Thousands.

Seventy Thousands.

Estimated on the basis of twenty cents per hundred dollars' State tax, ten cents per hundred school tax, and five cents per hundred pension tax, and increase of twenty-millions in taxable values will vield about $78,000 in revenue to the State. With increases also in the taxes derived from corporations and from personalty, which may be reasonably expected under existent conditions, the outlook now is that the State will have ample funds for the improvement of the public schools and lengthening of terms in the rural schools, and possibly sufficient to insursome road improvement.

Then, too, the expense of legislative sessions has been reduced one-third by the new Constitution, and many of the objects for which large appropriations have heretofore been paid out, no longer have claims on the State's finances. The two last preceding General Assemblies have had some large extra appropriations, among them being about $25,000 for the pentionilary, about $275,000 for the pentionilary, about $275,000 for the state Capitol, and $200,000 for the Jamestown Exposition. At the last session $10,000 was appropriated for the Stuart monument on a contingency which did not occur, and that sum is still left in the treasury. Altogether, the outlook is that the State will have ample funds in her treasury for all immediate and real needs.

lina-Fast Game To-morrow. Three of the best ball players in the Iwin City League participated in a game last Monday in the Virginia-Carolina League. They were Hulcher, the mysterious southpaw twirler of the Brownies, McLeavy, the catcher, and Eacho, the fast second base-man and short-stop of the same aggregation. The game in North Carolina was between teams from King-Carolina was between teams from King-ston and Greenville, and the three Richston and Greenville, and the three Rich-monders were with the Kingston nine. The game went to Greenville by the score of 1 to 0, in one of the prettiest exhibi-tions seen for some time. short time.
Barton Heights, now holding second Barton Heights, now holding second place in the league, plays the Richmond nine Saturday, and the Champion Brownies, with several ex-Manchester players, will tackle the team from the Southside. The winning or losing of the games Saturday will have much to do with the standing of the clubs. Should Manchester take a fall out of the Brownies, and the new aggregation from the south bank of the James declares that there is no doubt of their being able to win, then inefrom the home fwy President Rose will go into first place, provided, of course, it in turn defeats the Richmond team. But Bob Knightly and Manager Hamilton say that Richmond mine from the second secon and Manager Hamilton say that Rich-mond is booked to win. Anyway the lovers of the game will see two pretty exhibi-tions Saturday.
